

AAAS 406

PEDAGOGIES OF PROTESTS

FALL 2022
TUESDAYS

DILL

12:40 – 3:30 PM
IN-PERSON

Black people have a long history of developing complex and nuanced theories, pedagogies, and practices of protest. Black movements for social change continue to shape global discourse and understanding. Students in this class will learn from and lean on Black Feminisms to analyze various forms of Black resistance, including demonstrations, protesting, rebellions, artmaking, aesthetics, spiritual rituals, embodied practices, and institutional and legislative change.

TO ENROLL, VISIT:

student.msu.edu

Department of African American and African Studies
MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY